

I now have to suffer 11 digit dialing because wireless services objected to being in a separate areacode overlaying my wired service.

Now, they need to provide portable wireless phone numbers just as my wired service does.

Wireless providers used legislation to benefit themselves regarding the area code overlay; now legislation needs to provide a minor benefit to wireless customers by requiring wireless phone number portability when switching between wireless providers

Thanks for the opportunity to comment.
Robert Long